

In the Tactical Communication System Project, Synapse, it is designed to provide a flexible, mobile and uninterrupted communication service between the network control station and the users. Where there is no communication infrastructure, DMR technology comes into play and ensures uninterrupted communication even in the most remote corners. Thanks to the mobile system, data, video, image, message, voice communication and location sharing are done effectively with Synapse.